

2016 Midwest Middle School ELITE Combine Report

As the 2016 combine came to a close, one thing was clear the talent level continues to rise each year. Kids from all over the state of Kentucky and Ohio came and displayed their talent among their peers. In the coming years, you will start to hear about many of these leading their teams. The 2016 Combine MVP was class of 2020 6-5 guard Justin Powell. Among a great collection of players his talent and play stood out among them all.

Justin Powell 6-5 G/F (North Oldham) Louisville, KY Class of 2020

Justin is one of the most talented players in the country in the class of 2020. His size, versatility, and over all skill set separate him from his peers. He can take smaller guards in the paint and use his size and strength to score over them, while taking bigger guys to the perimeter and scoring at will. He is a total mismatch for his opponents. We look for Justin to continue to improve and get better finishing as one of the best players in not only the state, but also the country.

Nick Sorrell 6-0 G/F (Glasgow) Glasgow, KY Class of 2020

Nick showed immense toughness throughout the combine as he was battling migraines. He is a big time slasher with a solid handle. He scored at all levels during the combine and had great results during the testing portion of it. Really good looking athlete, but needs to continue to work on his jump shot. He will be a big time player for Glasgow in the coming years.

Neal Baker 6-2 F/C (Scott Co) Georgetown, KY Class of 2020

Neal was one of the biggest surprises of the combine. He will be another in the long line of great players coming through Scott Co high school. He is a true beast on the inside. Rebounds well in and out of his area and uses great footwork and skill to score at will on the inside. He also plays with a very high motor.

Antwaun Jackson 6-1 G/F (EJ Hayes) Lexington, KY Class of 2021

Antwaun was one of the best looking athletes at the combine. He has as smooth a game on the court, as you will find. Each game he continued to impress everyone in attendance with his moves and finishes to the basket. He also displayed a very good mid-range game. His ceiling as a player is very high and we think he will continue to get better and better each year as long as he keeps putting in the work. He has a chance to be special.
